Greensboro, NC-- Forget cutting coupons. This is the modern way to grocery shop....and it could save you a lot of time and money.

www.ajaxo.com is the name of the website. Just type in what items are topping your list, put in your zip code, and it shows you which store is selling the item cheapest.

Apparently Walgreens is having a great deal on tuna fish...and a gallon of milk is only $2.59.

It will also show you the deals going on at stores....for example, Post cereal at CVS is buy one get one free.

Another way you can use the website: say you only have eggs, chicken and milk in your refrigerator.

Type in those products, and click "recipe"and hundreds of results will pop up with what you can make for dinner.

You may not want to do your big grocery shopping this way...because you might be jumping from store to store, and wasting more money in gas.

But if you're just looking to pick up a certain item....checking this site is a great way to scan for deals all over town!

The correct spelling of the website, as given in the article, is www.ajaxo.com. I tried it, and it works.

(www.ajaxo.com is the name of the website)

I tried copying and pasting that address and there is no website. I tried ajaxo on Bing and no results. Was your info a typo?
